HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1880

The China Mail.

IT is not clear that the marked revulsion of political feeling at home will exercise any great influence upon the English Colonial policy, notwithstanding the strained interpretations of some of Mr Gladstone's utterances. From a purely political phenomenon now being wit- of eight hundred millions. Thus this nessed in the United Kingdom and Ireland may be regarded with impartiality. We are away from the "hurly- economy. my1 burly," and may be permitted to look on and coolly appraise the character of the issues and the parties arranged against each other. As clearly as the political scale was turned in 1874 by a dread of a democratic tendency, so is the wave of Conservatism now receding at the bidding of the will of the English people. If any safeguard can be said to be furnished by our constitutional party government, this movement must be accepted as a clear indication that the people of England now desire to rest from a too active foreign policy, in much the same manner as they wished in 1874 to rest from what then seemed to them to be a too rapid rate of advancement at home. By this rise and fall of parties the happy mean of sale administration is presumably secured; and although some the Beaconsfield Government from its anxiety may be felt by Englishmen position. Further news regarding the 4.40 P.M.—Late Letters may be posted abroad regarding the future guidance of conclusion of the Elections will be on board the packet with Late foreign affairs, until the constitution of eagerly looked for, as the issues laid the new Cabinet be made known, we do | before the electors will be of the greatest not share the fears of some that Eng- historical interest. and's present position will be seriously compromised. No Liberal Government can afford to trifle with British interests or rudely reverse the foreign policy followed out by their predecessors, however great a majority they may command in the House.

Even at this distance, it is not an easy matter to separate the truths from the fallacies commingled in the excited utterances of either party at the present time. A few general considerations will probably be sufficient for our purposs. The anxiety felt by nearly all rits distilled by the China Eugar Refinery Englishmen out of England to maintain during the quarter ending April 10th shows the prestige of her Empire gives a tinge | 3,712 gallons. to political feeling in a place like Hongkong; and the Beaconsfield Administration therefore possesses here the balance of sympathy. While the great moral principles laid down by Mr. Gladstone for the guidance of foreign policy continue to be so little heeded by other Governments, it is feared that the imperial responsibilities of England cannot be satisfactorily sustained and discharged upon higher grounds than those of self- whose period of service has expired.

essence of self-interest, as it fosters trade, fills the pockets of the people, and keeps down taxation; while, on the other hand, the "gun-powder and glory" of the Beaconsfield attitude raises the power and influence England, not only on the Continent, but in all her foreign possessions. After making allowance for what the Gladstonians say concerning the restless policy of the Conservatives, it must be admitted that a European war was kept out of England's responsibilities; mail closes on Saturday next, the 17th while it seems to be still matter of doubt how far the Conservative Government is directly responsible for the wars in Africa and Afghanistan. The Muscovite successes in Armenia, and at the Court of Shere Al necessitated vigorous action upon our part, unless we resolved to abandon our position, and with it our security and prostige. That action has been taken, it is proving successful, and the all but unanimous voice of the country concedes to Lord Beaconsfield the

The casting vote in Europe is clearly with England; and as long as it is known and felt that her vote and voice will be powerfully asserted in favour of peace, we believe, in spite of the armaments and social excitement abroad, that peace will be preserved.

In Fraser's Magazine for March

there is an able article on the Coming Elections which takes the other side; and after stating that the question to be want of confidence in any particular Government, the writer continues :- "It is the grave and serious issue whether this country is to enter upon a new cycle and a new career of Militarism, or whether it is to make the best of the revert to that career of Industrialism sixty newspapers, dailies and weeklies, which, with very few breaks, it had folfrom these countries, are now filed for lowed consistently and evenly for upwards of half a century until the present Government came into power. Is it to be Militarism and Toryism or Industrialism and Liberalism for the next five the precious metal. years?" The article then proceeds to point out that this Militarism which is resting like an incubus upon Germany cannot be carried out in England without troops, and that troops cannot be got without resorting to the ruinous systems of conscription or the pressgang. This "empiring" in Turkey, Asia Minor, Persia, Afghanistan and at the Cape could not be carried on with Governor, and further that he has been an army of 120,000; while the armies of Russia alone numbered 1,700,000. England has grown great because she had abjured the sword, and the only legacy which half a century of Milita-Hongkong point of view, therefore, the rism had left her was a national debt

We believe that any pretensions of Home Rule have been discarded by the Liberal Party, as a result of the wholesome lesson taught them at Liverpool: and Mr Fawcett's advice, to have no dealings with the clamorous and insatiable Irish clique, must have been adopted. Lord Hartington has been clear and distinct upon this point; and indeed we are inclined to think that the moderation of this statesman has not only secured for himself the representation of North-East Lancashire, but has powerfully influenced the great wave of Liberalism which has seemingly swept

The following is from an article by the Rev. H. Evington, a Japanese missionary, on "Education as a Missionary Agency in Japan," which appears in the Merch number of the Church Musionary Intelligencer:-

If education is to be used as a missionary agency in Japan now is the golden opportunity. There is now a sort of rage for education amongst a great many, and a desire to learn English in not a lew. long much of this will have subsided; and, more important still, the young people are now in many places smiling at the ignorance of their parents; and if the opportunity be not taken of educating them where we can. in Christian morality, we shall find that the missionary will have to work amongst a class of hardened sceptics and unbelievers. Whilst Japan is passing through a crisis, this by no means feeble instrument for educating the young, both boys and girls, should be made use of to give the ideas of the people an impetus in the right direction -the boys, foresmuch as they are to form the men, and so the moulders of thought in the coming generation; the girls, forasmuch as they will be the mothers of the night. A proof of and of the peaceful contentment of the people with its institutions may be seen in the quiet and orderly manner in which the examinations for the second degree passed off at the different provincial capitals the other day. At the capital of each province from 10,000 to 15,000 students were assembled to attend the triennial competitive examinations. Though students in China can be as noisy and riotous as in Europe, and these periodic gatherings are admirably suited for the ventilation of grievances, there was not the slightest trouble from one end of the country to the other. The candidates went quietly to their examination cells, the usual proportion passed, the usual number hanged themselves, and the rest, in their tens of thousands, returned quietly to their homes to resume for another three years a meditative contemplation of the ing of a large gun which he was firing off maxims of the sages. The China Review for July and August, 1875, is at hand. It says that forty-two essays were sent in to compete for the best paper on the advantages of Christlanity for the development of a State. All our learned societies should subscribe to this scholarly and enterprising Review. It is a sixty paged, bi-monthly, repertory of what scholars are ascertaining about China. The lecture on Chinese Poetry in this volume is alone worth the price of the Review. Ad-

Christian Advocate (U.S.)

Trubner's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review :- "This is the title of a publication, the first number of which has lately reached us from Hongkong, where it has been set on foot as in some respects a continuation of Notes and Queries on China and Japan, the extinction of which useful zerial a year or two ago has been much regretted in Europe as well as in China. The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, somewhat similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. . The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years | to II.E. the Governor. upon the investigation of Chinese literature, antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of inform. ation, rendering some such channel of pub licity as is now provided extremely desir able; and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked for from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs' corps, and the missionary body, among whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated, and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors. In a paper on Dr. Legge's She King, by the lars, Optical Instruments, Mordan's Rev. E. J. Eitel, to which the place of Pencil-cases, &c.—John Noble, agent honour is deservedly given, an excellent for Negretti & Zambra. summary is presented of the chronological problems and arguments involved in connexion with this important work. Some translations from Chinese novels and plays are marked by both accuracy and freshness makers, Eastern House of Beaconsfield Policies against Fire to the extent to of style ; and an account of the career of Arcade. the Ch see poet-statesman of the eleventh contury, Su Tung-p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, is not only historically valuable, but is also distinguished by its literary grace. Beside notices of new books relating to China and the East, which will be a useful feature of the Review, if carried out with punctuality and detail, we are glad to notice that "Notes" and "Queries" are destined to find a place in its pages also. It is to be hoped that this opening for contributions
